January 12, 2015

Autistext: Rethinking Long-held Ideas about Language, Rhetoric, and What it Means to Tell (a/Autistic) Stories

Melanie Yergeau, Assistant Professor, Department of English, University of Michigan

NOON – 1 PM, Garrison Room, Memorial Union, UC Davis

If narrative is what makes one human, then what does it mean to deny the autistic’s capacity for narrative? This talk examines the ways in which the Autistic culture movement provides opportunities to rethink long-held ideas about language, rhetoric, and what it means to tell (a/Autistic) stories.

This event is co-sponsored by American Studies, Cinema and Technocultural Studies, Cultural Studies, Theater and Dance, Performance Studies, University Writing Program and Women and Gender Studies.

For a complete listing of CCBP Program events, please visit http://occr.ucdavis.edu/ccbpb2014